From the KPMG Seasonal Talent Team

See what our colleagues say about the advantages and flexibility of being part of the KPMG Seasonal Audit team.

“KPMG’s seasonal audit role has allowed me to advance my career by finishing my MBA degree while also keeping my audit skills fresh. The role has proved surprisingly challenging, offering me my first opportunity to serve as a leader for the audit of a major manufacturing company’s treasury unit.”

- Matita, Seasonal employee

“With my family based in the Philippines, the seasonal audit role has allowed me the flexibility to visit them for extended periods. After working as a senior audit manager for nine years, I did not want to take a step back on my rewarding career. This role has made the best of both priorities possible. I’m consistently impressed by the level of challenging assignments I lead.”

- Jessel, Seasonal employee

“After nine years as a KPMG audit team member, I left the firm in 2008 to expand my professional experience to the private industry by serving in controller and director of accounting roles. When my current employer had a staff reduction in late 2014, I began searching for a new permanent full-time role. I didn’t want to feel pressured to jump at the first interview or opportunity and lose sight of my long-term career focus. The KPMG seasonal audit role allowed me to remain patient with my job search, continue expanding my capabilities and keep connected with the KPMG network. ”

“After working as a KPMG senior auditor for more than three years, I began considering that a teaching career path might feel more rewarding. I left the firm for one year to broaden my professional experience by serving as a financial analyst role at a private company. After experiencing both sides, public accounting and private industry, my future teaching path became clearer and soon after I was accepted into the Memphis Teacher Residency. The three year teaching program does not start until May 2015 and I wanted to stay active for five months leading to my start. This seasonal audit role allowed me to assist KPMG’s audit team during their busiest time and start rehearsing teaching concepts by mentoring first year audit team members.”

- Jeffrey, Seasonal employee

“I have three children who maintain a full schedule of extracurricular activities. When my youngest son started first grade, I had more free time but still couldn’t commit to the demanding work schedule I held as an audit manager 10 years prior. This 30 hour seasonal audit role was the perfect match for my schedule. It allowed me to utilize my audit experience, continue building my professional network and satisfy my family’s needs”
